

IR LETTER TEMPLATE

Investor Relations Letter

Founder-style communication for a reporting period, written with transparent evidence boundaries.

[Metric 1]

Replace with source-backed figure

[Metric 2]

Replace with source-backed figure

[Metric 3]

Replace with source-backed figure

Evidence boundary

State what the source supports, what remains pending, and which claims must not be made without additional evidence.

Tone

Clear, candid, source-backed, and focused on management priorities.

Guardrails

Avoid unsupported traction, customer, revenue, valuation, or regulatory claims.

Letter Structure

Use developed paragraphs and a small number of metric cards to keep the letter human and readable.

What occurred

Summarize supported financial, operational, and strategic events for the period.

Why it matters

Explain investor relevance without overstating commercial, clinical, or regulatory maturity.

Challenges

Discuss working capital, revenue maturity, funding dependency, or missing evidence.

Priorities

State the next evidence-backed execution priorities and pending confirmations.

Suggested rhythm

Opening note, evidence-backed highlights, financial context, risk and dependency note, priorities, and closing management message.

Source Basis and Disclosure Control

Use this page to separate verified events from pending or unsupported investor claims.

Source basis

Signed accounting records
Board-approved materials
Grant or program records
Other source-backed files

Not established

Audit opinion
Cash-flow statement
Customer contracts
Regulatory status
Valuation

Publication check

Before delivery, verify figures, wording, page breaks, source boundaries, prohibited wording, and whether sensitive local paths are absent.

Reader promise

Use direct language, explain uncertainty, and keep the letter useful for current and future stakeholders.